AIRPLANE

By Frank Cammallere

I woke up early today
I'm finally on my way
I'm flying back home to renew my ties
Traveling on the friendly skies
I'm now rushing to the flight gate
hoping I won't be late
As I'm about to board my plane
it slowly starts to rain
I now hear a voice say
there's going to be a delay
I will accept my fate
and wait and wait and wait.

INTERESTING FACTS

At least 31 languages have a word very similar to "huh".

Huh it's a humble word often a mere involuntary linguistic response, but behind this simple and interrogatory Palindrome is an extraordinary truth. It's also universal according to research conducted 2013 by the Max Planck institute for psycholinguistics.

In another ones a version of the word can be found in nearly every language on earth, researchers analyzed 31 languages including Spanish Mandarin Icelandic and indigenous tongues. What they found was that everyone included a word similar in both sound and function to the English huh.

For example in Mandarin it's an 'a?', and in Dutch 'he?'.

No matter the language the word includes a relaxed tongue rising pitch and there's a sound before the vowel. It's an H or a glottal stop (a consonant sound made by closing the glottis, the space between the vocal folds). Although there is some variation in pronunciation, the word shows staggeringly little difference among languages compared to what might be expected. This raises the question, "Is huh even a word at all?". Perhaps it's an innate interjection like a scream or a sneeze, or a non lexical conversational sound like for all, yet the researchers noted several factors that point to ha being a full-fledged word.

QUOTE OF THE MONTH:

Be thankful in all things for this is right.

DID YOU KNOW

By Paulette Kramer

In 1621 the Plymouth colonists and the Wampanoag people Shared an autumn harvest feast that is acknowledged today as one of the first Thanksgiving celebrations in the first colonies. Its roots can be tracked back to other side of the Atlantic. The Separatists who came over on the Mayflower and the Puritans who arrived soon after brought with them their traditions of days of fasting during difficult times. End of days of feasting and celebration to thank God in times of plenty, whatever you may be going through or however you may believe to be true, we all should always be thankful for what we do have right in front of us.

Happy Thanksgiving everyone
